

Why Turner Midcap Equity Fund?

- Investing in both growth and value stocks can help generate returns with fewer peaks and valleys (less risk) than investing in either style alone.

Expense Information

Turner has contractually agreed to waive fees and reimburse Fund expenses to keep the Fund's "Net Total Operating Expenses" from exceeding 1.15% through January 31, 2010. Turner may discontinue this arrangement at any time after January 31, 2010.

The performance data quoted represents past performance. The principal value and investment return will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than the performance data shown here. Returns shown, unless otherwise indicated, are total returns, with dividends and income reinvested. Returns spanning more than one year are annualized. Fee waivers are in effect; if they had not been in effect performance would have been lower. Mutual fund investing involves risk, including potential loss of principal. Performance can vary over short time periods. Attribution analysis is a process used to analyze either the absolute portfolio return (often called contribution) or the excess return (often referred to as relative return) between a portfolio and its benchmark. Total return is the price change of the portfolio including dividends accrued over the report period. Contribution to return is the product of the first two columns. The percent contribution for a single day is the security weight multiplied by the daily security return. These returns are geometrically linked. The overall total effect is the sum of the top group-level total effect values, or the portfolio's over/under performance. Holding and portfolio characteristics are subject to change and do not constitute investment recommendations. Turner sector weights are based on Russell Index classifications with minor variations. Differences include combining "Other Energy" and "Integrated Oils" into the "Energy" sector, dispersing some of the securities of the "Other" sector into a defined sector category, and reclassifying selected securities as deemed appropriate by each sector team.

As of December 31, 2009, Cliffs Natural Resources Inc. made up 2.01% of the Turner Midcap Equity Fund, SBA Communications Corp. made up 1.94%, Micron Technology Inc. made up 1.29%, Jabil Circuit Inc. made up 1.25%, Concho Resources Inc. made up 1.71%, Marshall & Ilsley Corp. made up 0.89%, RRI Energy Inc. made up 0.00%, Aeropostale Inc. made up 0.00%, NCR Corp. made up 0.00%, and Biovail Corp. made up 1.43%.

The Turner Midcap Equity Fund invests mainly in a diverse range of medium-capitalization companies that the investment adviser, Turner Investment Management, believes have the potential for long-term growth and have attractively priced shares. The investment process for the fund involves fundamental analysis of candidates for investment, taking into consideration such financial ratios as price/cash flow, price/earnings, and price/book.

In the fourth quarter the Turner Midcap Equity Fund generated a 3.83% return to trail its benchmark, the Russell Midcap Index, which rose 5.92%. So-so stock selection, particularly in several major market sectors, was responsible for the fund's underperformance.

Of the nine market sectors in which the fund was invested, four of them beat their corresponding index sectors. Contributing the most extra return were holdings in the energy, materials/processing, and producer-durables sectors, which amounted to a 27% weighting. In those sectors, energy-services, mining, and metals shares produced the best relative results. In absolute terms, energy stocks recorded the highest overall return, a 13% gain.

The primary detractors from performance were holdings in the technology, utilities, and consumer-discretionary sectors, a 34% weighting. In those sectors, hardware, Internet-security, telecommunications, electric-utility, retailing, gaming, and household-products shares recorded weak relative returns. Utilities stocks recorded the worst results, a 2% loss.

We believe our two-pronged investment approach emphasizing companies with business momentum or undervalued assets, or both, is well-suited for a time when fundamentals are more and more important in moving the market. Consequently, we favor stocks with good earnings prospects and relatively low price/book ratios that are supported by above-average levels of cash on their issuers' balance sheets. Some stocks in industries that we think offer good potential gains: semiconductor, hardware, technology manufacturing, regional banking, energy exploration, mining, telecommunications, and gaming. We hold modest overweighted positions in the energy and producer-durables sectors.

As we see it, picking the shares of companies that can increase earnings at an above-average rate should be the key to outperformance in stock investing over the next 12 months, and the stock market should continue rising in 2010, driven by two primary catalysts. First, we think corporate earnings could climb at double-digit rates in both 2010 and 2011. And second, we think economic growth both here and abroad should exceed expectations.
